

Andrew Joseph Wolfson

July 15, 1996 - April 13, 2025

Andrew Wolfson (1996-2025) was a most generous, sweet and caring person. He loved school, and took a particular interest in reading and writing. In his later years, he wrote beautiful poetry, honoring his friends and his family. It is not surprising that he went into the field of teaching, where he continued learning and sharing his knowledge with his students.

Andrew also had a love of Lego sculptures. He built complex and intricate replicas of historical buildings, monuments and everyday items, including a small working typewriter. He loved art in all its forms, including paintings, drawings, theater and music. He was a devoted brother, son and grandson.

Andrew is now joined with his father, who passed in 2021.

A celebration of life service will be held for Andrew at a later date, to be announced.

“ Though I never had the privilege of meeting Andrew personally, my daughter had the opportunity to work with him recently and always spoke of him with deep admiration. When she shared the news of his passing, we were both heartbroken and at a loss for words. She described Andrew as exceptionally intelligent, kind, and generous with his time —always willing to help and support others. I am profoundly saddened by this loss, and my heart goes out to Andrew’s family and all who knew and loved him. May peace and healing find everyone touched by his life and this tragedy. You are all in my thoughts and prayers.

“ I am very sad to lose a colleague and friend in Andrew. The five short years I worked and socialized with him were too few. I appreciated that time to get to know him as a compassionate and caring teacher and friend who enjoyed the arts. I miss him and will always think of him fondly. May his soul rest in peace for all eternity and may God’s love be with all those who grieve his loss.

I am in shock that he is gone. He loved his students and we shared so many talks about education. He was an excellent teacher and cared for his students. We would have conversations about classroom management and educational development. I was proud of his growth in education. He will be missed your co-worker and friend. Dr. Tonya L Brown
