

Douglas Lamont Belfield

February 1, 1977 - February 28, 2024

Douglas Lamont Belfield was born on February 1, 1977 in the Bronx, New York to his parents Vontelle and Douglas Sr. Vontelle and Douglas moved to Brooklyn, where she met and married Pierre Herard. Pierre served in the Navy, and they relocated to Summerville, South Carolina to begin to live their lives as a military family. Vontelle and Pierre welcomed two sons, Aurelle Nicari Herard and Keenan Tyson Herard. Douglas and his family moved many times to various states. Therefore, Douglas attended many schools throughout his school years. The family ultimately relocated and settled in Jacksonville, FL. Douglas began working as an adolescent. He was always eager to earn money. He worked for several businesses throughout his working career. He was a workaholic and would work seven days a week.

Douglas was passionate about fitness. He was a fitness guru and enjoyed showing off his muscles. This inspired him to become a self-employed personal trainer. Douglas was proud to display his Superman emblem that was tattooed on his arm. He was fondly called "Super Doug" or "Doug Super". Douglas was artistic and loved animation, animals, especially cats. He cared for cats since he was a young boy. He was a people's person, humorous, and loved telling stories. Douglas left Jacksonville to pursue a career in California. After a few years he decided to return to Jacksonville. Douglas was a mixologist, he would adamantly state "I'm the best bartender in Jacksonville."

Douglas entered into eternal peace on February 28, 2024. He was proceeded in death by his mother Vontelle Herard, his paternal grandfather John Belfield and his maternal grandmother Reola Belfield who has a street named in her honor "Reola Belfield Way" in the Bronx, New York where Douglas was born.

Cherishing his memories are his only son Antonio Allen Belfield, Brothers Aurelle Nicari Herard, Keenan Tyson Herard and Step-Father Pierre Herard, Niece Taysia Herard, Aunts Jean Murphy, Miriam Mitchell, Uncles John Belfield, Derrick Belfield, Andre Belfield and Gregory Belfield, Great Aunts, Great Uncles, and a host of cousins and friends.

“ I had tried reaching out a couple of times & now it makes sense why you never responded. You were there for me during the darkest time of my life & were the light who never gave up. I miss you terribly. Until we meet again....
