“ My son James, I've always loved you, now I will miss you until your ressurected as the Bible promises. You were so smart your mind was sharp. You have made me so proud of you. You always poured your heart into all you set out to do. Helping people all the while setting your needs aside. You became a master at your trade even working humbly for celebrities. Hearing about your travels and experiences brought happiness to me. However your greatest happiness showed itself best when you witnessed to others from your heart through social media. Talking continually about Jehovahs creation, and his appointed son Christ Jesus and the one and only government God's Kingdom to rule over the earth. Thankyou James for bearing witness to the truth. I love you James...your Dad

“ When James started showing an interest in coin collecting, I was his "go-to guy). I was able to get him going in the right direction. Once he got the hang of it, he was able to help others find that joy. I appreciated him finding something that he really enjoyed to do. I also liked when he would text me whenever he found some really unique coins. I was blessed to know him.
