

Paul Wilmore Bremer

July 11, 1944 - September 14, 2025

Paul W. Bremer died in Jacksonville, Florida on September 14, 2025. Paul was born in Atlantic Beach, Florida. He is survived by his wife, Linda; sister, Lee Martin; and brothers, Alan and Ross.

Paul was actively involved in community development in and around Jacksonville. An avid traveler and boating enthusiast, Paul enjoyed bird watching, fencing, and spending time with Linda. He co-founded Bremer Orthopedics in Jacksonville with his brother Ross, contributing patented orthopedic devices in leadership and technical roles. Prior to his business ventures he worked as a teacher, social worker in Tampa.

A private service will be announced at a later date. In lieu of flowers, please consider making a donation to the Sierra Club.

“ *I'm saddened to Learn of Paul's passing. Paul and I founded the Annie Lytle Preservation Group. He was a wonderful soul and mentor. He was very involved in the community and assisted us during the tenure of the cleanup of the School.
My love, thoughts, prayers and condolences are extended to Linda and all of his family and all whose lives he touched.*

“ Alan Bremer Memories of Paul Bremer

September 2025

As young children, I remember running on the beach and surfing the waves with Paul. When a crab latched onto my toe, he grabbed and swung me until it released. He assigned me the task of shucking oysters and made me feel good at it.

I watched Paul's romance with the girl down the street as it started, and watched it mellow like fine vintage wine over many decades.

Paul loved boats and the water. We had wonderful excursions together on "Coconut" and "Belle Marie" he meticulously tended.

After Kathy and I married, we met in New York and strolled down Fifth Avenue, arm-in-arm, talking nonstop about so many topics. Paul was a lifelong learner and a voracious reader. He knew something about just about everything, almost always more than I did.

He role-modeled researching and doing the work to bring a dream to life, as with the Five Points house restoration. I remember his pride as he showed us around, and how much the attention to authenticity and detail inspired our son Scott, who went on to acquire and renovate houses.

Though he did not much enjoy young children, Paul found it in him to love our sons and be a beloved role model for them. He was generous, and he and Linda helped us buy our first NY apartment.

In my sadness at the loss, I take some comfort in the memory of recent good times in Jacksonville, and the memories of time spent swimming, fencing, boating, laughing, and being together.

“ Paul was eight years younger than I, so I was not home in much of his growing up years. After he moved back to Jacksonville though, we were reacquainted as adults. He became a friend, advisor, mentor, and voracious student of the O & P business. He joined the existing Bremer family business and was an equal partner in new orthopedic businesses and patents.

Paul was a genuine asset to his neighborhood and any community of which he was part. He really understood governmental regulation and how to deal with bureaucratic issues, organizational efficiency and adaptation of new technology to existing and new product production. He was professorial in his research, study and thoroughness of any idea or issue of interest to him from how to create a beneficial medical device, the viability of installing solar panels on his home to a foolproof way to avoid over torquing a skull pin.

Besides our business relationships, Paul was a solid friend and caring brother who, although we had our separate lives, neighborhoods, and personal interests, always kept in touch and was an essential part of our lives. We both favored the historical in cars, buildings, the Jacksonville area past. We shared the love of wooden boats, in which Paul realized his dream in Bell Marie. Paul's sense of humor was eclectic as well. From cartoons in the bathroom to videos as diverse as Teddy Bear Irony and Randy Rainbow musical parodies. A one-of-a-kind, interesting, and thoughtful human being who will be missed by me and all who know him.

“ Paul and Linda took me in as part of the Herschel Street crowd. (I am on Oak Street. A Friday evening spent on their porch was such a delight. I and Mitchell got to know Paul and Linda well. Seeing them at many functions and catching up with them was always great. He will be missed. Our heart goes out to Linda. Roxanne and Mitchell

“ Paul was a community minded neighbor who always had a friendly and cheery disposition when I would run into him walking around Riverside. He gave so much to the neighborhood, improving the community whenever he could. He will always be a part of my memory as I pass by the properties he and Linda rehabilitated. Paul Bremer is a man who will be long remembered for his many contributions that benefited so many. Linda, I am so sorry for your loss and want you to know that I hold you in the light as you grieve. “ Paul was a compassionate and attentive person. He tuned in to the needs of people and the issues in our community. He was kind and caring and quick with a greeting and a smile. Paul was a problem-solver - he took time to get to the cause of the problem and then did what he could to fix it! That level of caring benefits us all. We will miss him in these and so many ways. Linda, we love Paul and we love you. We are deeply sorry for your loss. Love, Kathy and Bud

“ My deepest sympathies to Linda on the passing of her husband, Paul. He was a fixture in Riverside - known on social media as "Dogwalker" - and always had a friendly greeting for everyone he met. Whenever he passed by my house he always stopped for a conversation.

In his professional life, he was a brilliant inventor of several different medical devices. I first met him years ago, not as a neighbor, but when I was selling printing. There are people living full and productive lives today all over the world who benefitted from Paul's inventions.

Years ago Reader's Digest had a monthly feature called "My Most Unforgettable Character" allowing readers to submit stories about the memorable people in their lives. For me, Paul will always be one of the most memorable people.

He will be missed.
